

Nitin Kapur, M.D.

Dr. Kapur is Board Certified in internal medicine and joined the staff of the St. Luke's Medical Group in December 2011. Prior to working at the St. Luke's Medical Group, he was a hospital-based physician at the St. Luke's Medical Center in the Texas Medical Center. Dr. Kapur is excited to transition from treating acutely ill patients in the hospital to the clinic where he can focus on providing preventative, lifelong care to his patients.

Dr. Kapur grew up in McAllen, Texas, attended college at Rice University, and medical school at UT-Southwestern Medical School in Dallas. He completed his residency in internal-medicine, with a primary care focus, at the Yale University School of Medicine. He holds a Master of Public Health degree from the Harvard School of Public Health and won an applied epidemiology fellowship at the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) during his time in medical school. His creative non-fiction essays, based on patient encounters, have been published in the Journal of the American Medical Association (JAMA) and the Journal of General Internal Medicine (JGIM). In his spare time, he enjoys running with his dog, Willa, eating brunch with his wife, Alpna, and writing. He is conversant in Spanish.